The Morehead Honors College is committed to providing the best for our students. Through small class sizes, internship programs, travel-study funding, research opportunities, faculty connections, scholarship support, early registration, and alumni networks, we open doors to the best the university has to offer.
Each fall, about 650 new students join the Morehead Honors College, with an additional 20 percent accepted after applying for First-Semester Entry.

As an Honors student, you can choose any degree program at UGA. The entire university, with its 170-plus majors and academic programs, is open to you.
Knowledge and free lunch in the same setting? Yes, please!

Through our lunchbox lecture series (pictured above) and book discussions, we connect students with faculty over a meal. Honors students also enjoy early registration and small class sizes along with a wide variety of Honors-specific course sections and seminars.

Honors Scholarships

The University of Georgia’s top two academic scholarships are available through the Morehead Honors College and the UGA Admissions process:

- Foundation Fellowship: UGA’s premier academic scholarship provides generous annual funding and stipends for group and individual study abroad, as well as research and conference grants.

- CURO Honors Scholarship: UGA’s top undergraduate research scholarship provides $3,000 of funding yearly for undergraduates interested in conducting research in a variety of fields.

Enriched Education
Supportive Community

Honors is more than a UGA college. It’s a community. Whether you’re making friends at Moore Hall, living in Myers Hall (right), attending Honors events, networking with faculty over a meal, finding a mentor through the PAL program, or benefiting from Honors donor support, we provide you with a foundation for your time at UGA.
You have the whole world to explore, with Honors as your starting point. We’re here to help you stretch your boundaries and thrive as a UGA undergraduate.

Experiential Opportunities

Leadership

Build your leadership skills through Honors internships, the Corsair Society, Honors Student Council, Honors College Ambassadors, and Honors Teaching Assistants. Each fall, select student leaders receive the Crane Leadership Scholarship.

Discovery

Whether you’re viewing the world from a mountaintop or discovering it through a microscope, our goal is to get you there through travel-study (Honors International Scholars Program) and research (Center for Undergraduate Research Opportunities).

Service

Tutor and mentor students through the Thomas Lay After-School Program; provide math instruction through UGA MATHCOUNTS Outreach; or apply for the Ash Service Award, which helps fund internships with state service organizations.
From your first advising appointment to preparations for your last interview for graduate school, you will find personalized attention throughout your time in the Morehead Honors College. We provide:

- Academic advising and priority registration
- UGA’s major scholarships office, which serves all UGA students as they apply for nationally and internationally competitive scholarships
- Career development guidance, including application and interview help for medical school, health careers, and graduate programs
- Workshops on resume writing, interviewing, and professionalism
